Southern Accent 1999

Proud to be 'Southern

Birmingham-Southern College
900 Arkadelphia Road
Birmingham, Alabama 35254

A New Face for an Old Friend

The past year has been a year of changes and improvements on the Hilltop. 'Southern now boasts an excellent new fitness center and the Norton Campus Center, two beautiful buildings housing different services for students. Also new to campus is the Southern Environmental Museum which attracted more than its share of children and adults in its first year. Plans have also been unveiled for a new fraternity row, a renovated science building and humanities center, and what promises to be a breath-taking landmark, the bell tower. All of these new buildings, as well as a massive beautification program, have made 'Southern an attractive place to live and learn. Of course, the same friendly faces and interesting classes exist. 1999 has certainly been a year to be proud to be 'Southern.

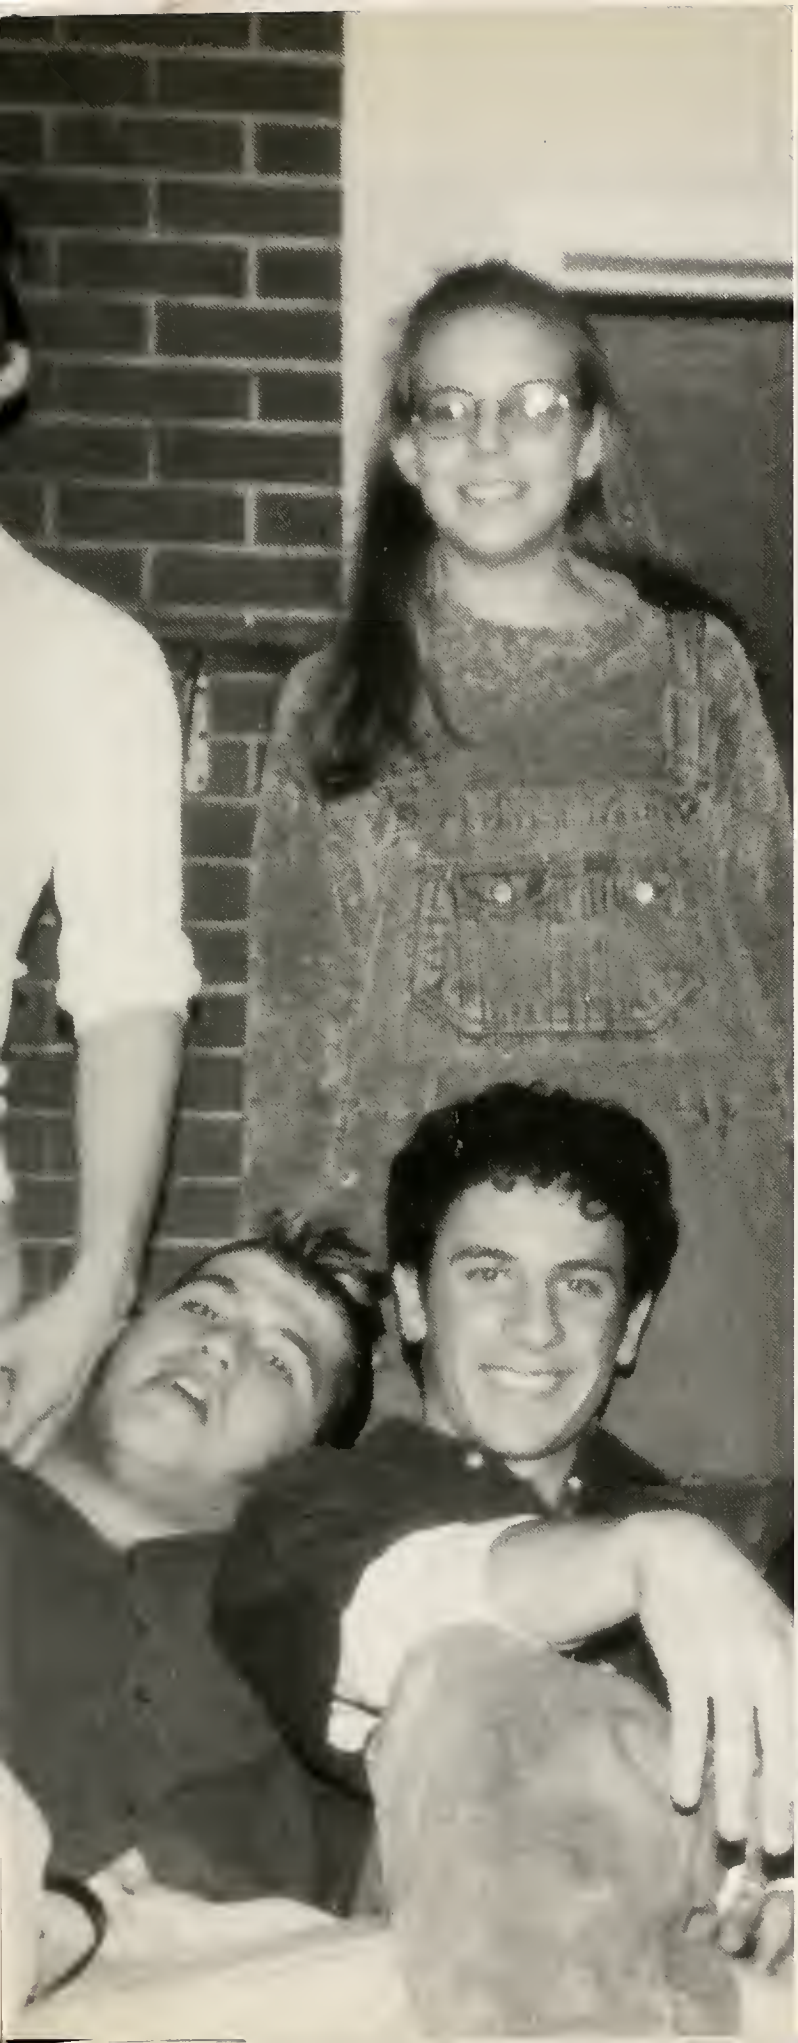
Hanging out at fraternity row proves fun for Justin Williams, Ben Glasser, Anthony Cashio, Meredith Hopton-Jones, and Rich Stevens.



Student Life

From partying on Thursday nights to hanging out by the fountain, the best times at 'Southern usually involve making friends. These great memories really make you proud to be 'Southern.

Striplin also has plenty of dumbbells to lift.

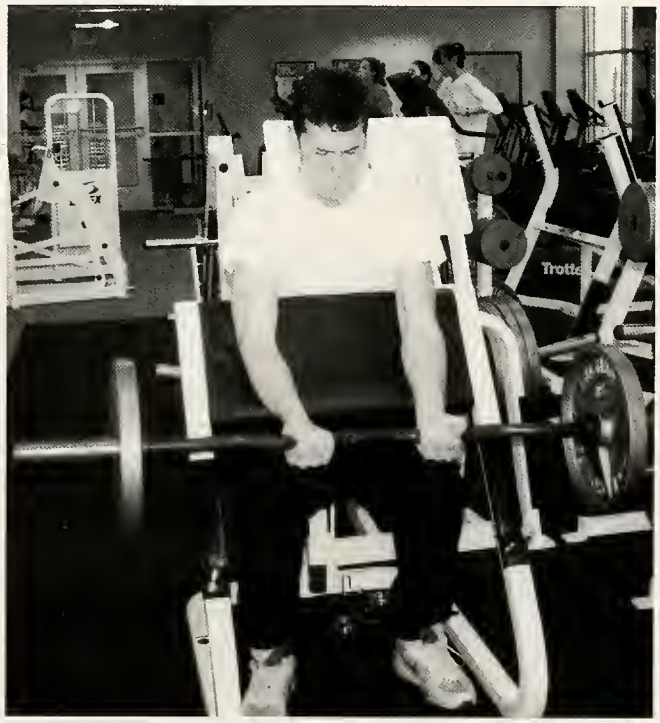
When hot summer weather pushes students indoors, the treadmills provide a great place to run or walk.

Amanda Burkett cheerfully welcomes students to Striplin. An attendant is always at the front desk to help students out with equipment.

Proud to be Fit

New Striplin Fitness Center replaces Old Gym as the place for getting in shape

Students at 'Southern definitely emphasize physical fitness. By early afternoon each day, the 'Southern uniform changes from Polos and khakis to Umbros and tee-shirts as many people exercise to relieve stress. Now exercising is easier than ever with the beautiful new Striplin Fitness Center, featuring basketball, racquetball, aerobics, a pool, and the latest weight circuits and cardiovascular equipment. Or, if your workout is watching television, at least Striplin is a really pretty building to show all your friends!



The basketball courts let everyone from BSC players to novices play a pickup game or just work on their jump shot.

Free weights are another good way to build muscle and impress onlookers.

Proud to be Secure

When you're broken down late at night, security is your best friend, but those little yellow tickets might have you singing a different song

Campus security performs many services for students. Always on duty, the officers work non-stop to keep this campus safe from crime, and also to check fire alarms, to give directions, and to give students rides when needed. Remember all that next time a ticket has you cursing them!

Sly Dog Sylvester teaches a few old tricks to the new officer.

Students are always welcome at the "Security Shack" even if it is just to whine pitiful excuses about why one simply had to be parked in the Goodwin loading zone for three days.

Jeff, a veteran officer, points while yelling, "That way, Chief Youngblood, and hurry!"

One officer departs for a trip around campus on the trusty security bicycle.

A security officer checks in with a visitor. Security checks in all visitors and gives them directions if needed.

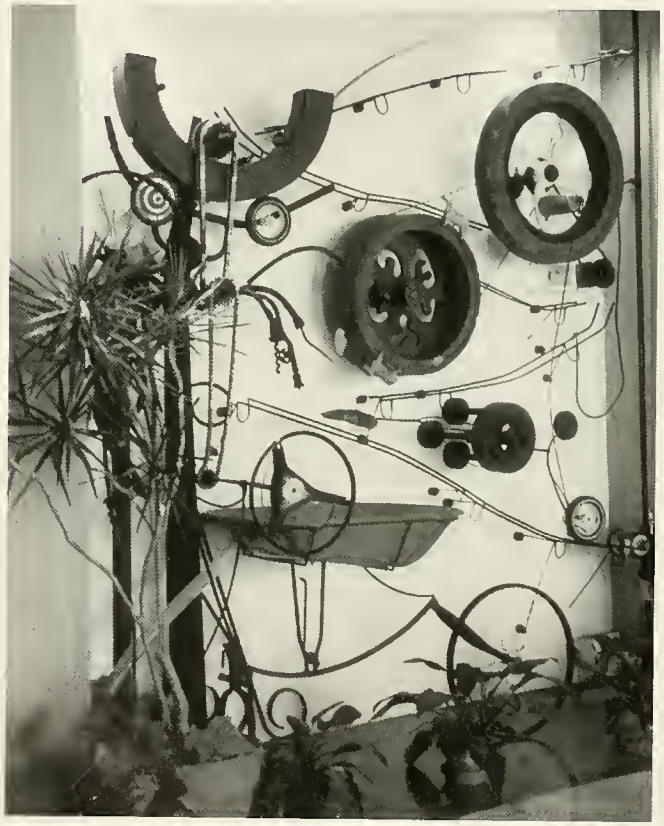
Proud to Conserve

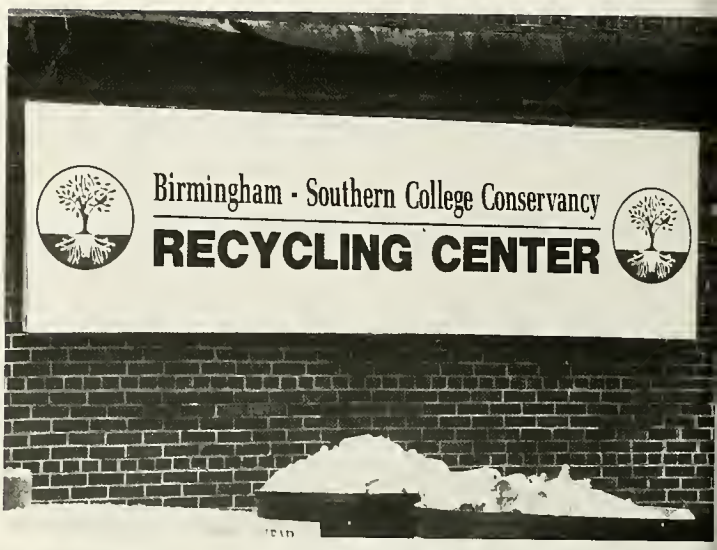
Far from simple recycling, environmental awareness at 'Southern has reached new levels

Led by Roald Hazelhoff, environmental awareness at 'Southern is at a high level. The recycling system prevents trash from being wasted, and the Ecoscape and Southern Environmental Center illustrate how to take care of the earth. The new environmental studies minor further shows that the College has not forgotten Mother Earth.

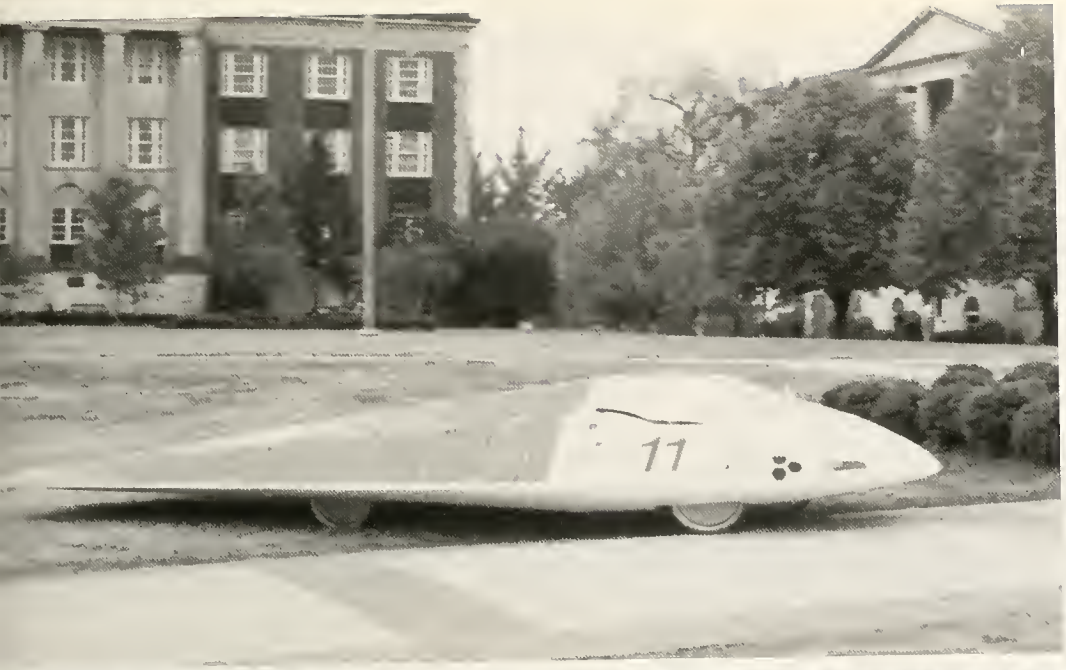


The new 'Southern Environmental Center entrance features an interactive sculpture designed by Professor Steve Cole.

With the help of student volunteers, the Center helped create what has become a nationally recognized recycling program.



SEC Director Roald Hazelhoff hangs on to the rafter in the new interactive museum.



Working in partnership with 'Southern's Energy Committee, the SEC organized solar car races on campus and helped make the Hilltop a bicycle-friendly campus.

Filled with fragrant flower beds and beneficial bug sculptures, the Ecoscape also features a classroom pavillion designed so professors can hold class among the gardens.

Meals always last longer in Norton; no one wants to leave friends to go study.

Students check out with popular cashier Johnnie Whatley. Seeing the caf workers every day makes it easy to be friends with the men and women who feed the campus.

Rob Sway makes his selection from Pasta Con Amore.

The nice new tables and chairs make it easy to choose chatting with friends, being a "Caf Potato," over going to class.

Proud to Chow Down

Gone are the days and nights of pondering, Traditions or Trends. With Norton came many tasty picks for meals including burgers, deli sandwiches, smoothies, pizza, pasta, and the old favorites like country fried steak. For the hungry, there's bound to be something good.

The new Norton Student Center eclipses the old Caf in selection and availability of food

Grab-and-go foods are a big part of the new Caf. Baskets with everything from cereal to candy bars line the area by the cash registers, a convenience appreciated by those wanting snack foods for later.

Josh Peck sells some last-minute supplies. Students can often be found working the cash register and helping out in the bookstore through work study.

Comfortable couches and big screen televisions make the upstairs lounges a good destination for breaks between class.

Plenty of tables on the second floor make a terrific place to study in groups or alone.

Proud to be Convenient

New Norton offers new resources and updates old ones

The new Norton offers many services for students. From lounges with cable television to offices for Student Affairs and other departments, Norton has pretty much everything students need.

Forget a birthday? No problem! The new bookstore sells cards and gifts, all of which can be purchased with a student card.

Proud to Study Hard

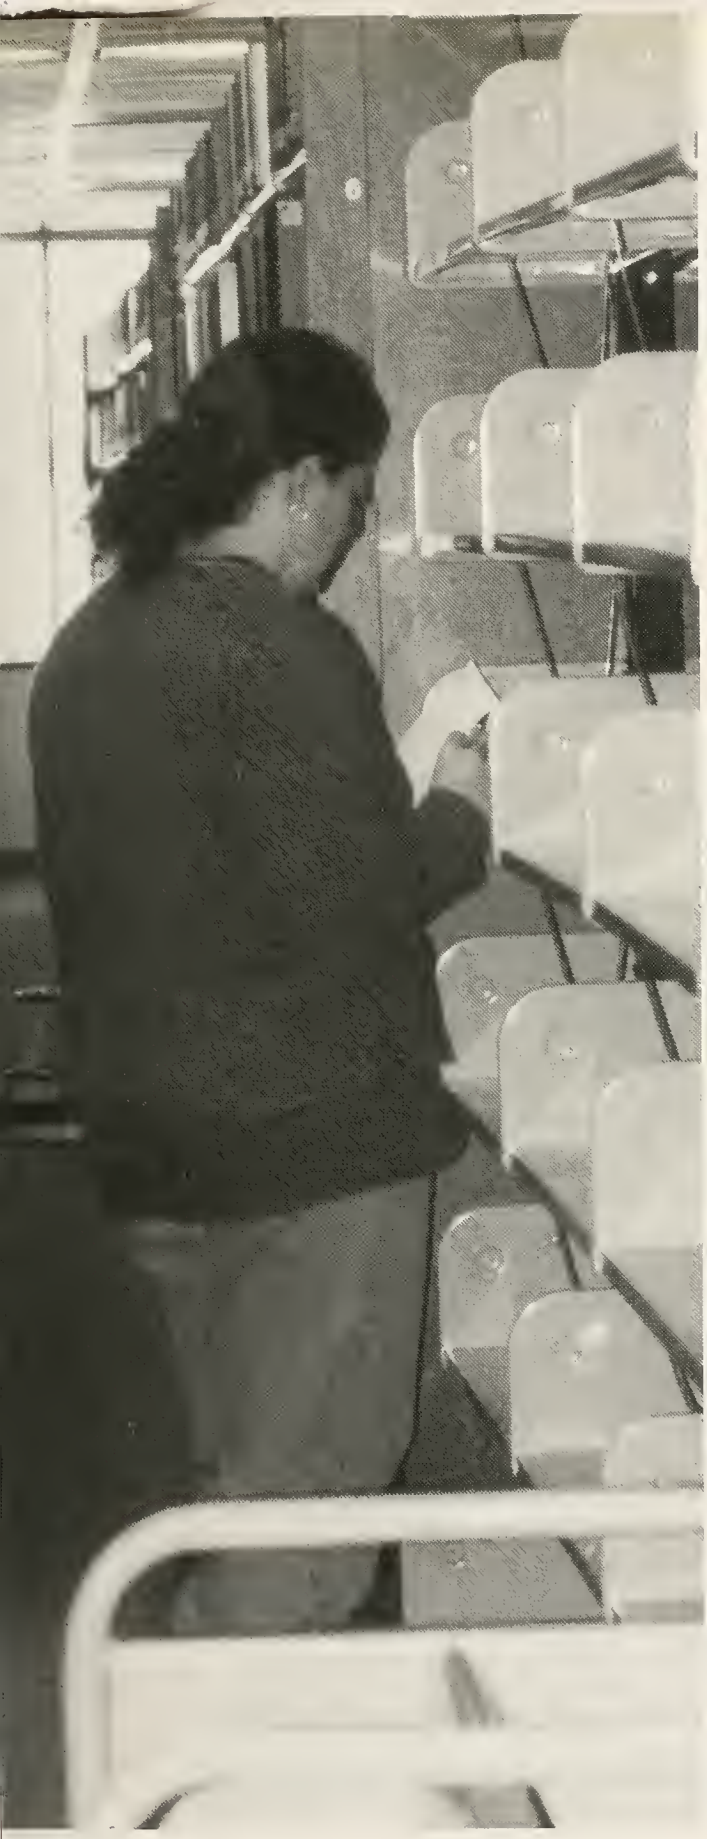
Though some people only use the library to check email or rent videos, there are actually quite a few resources at your disposal

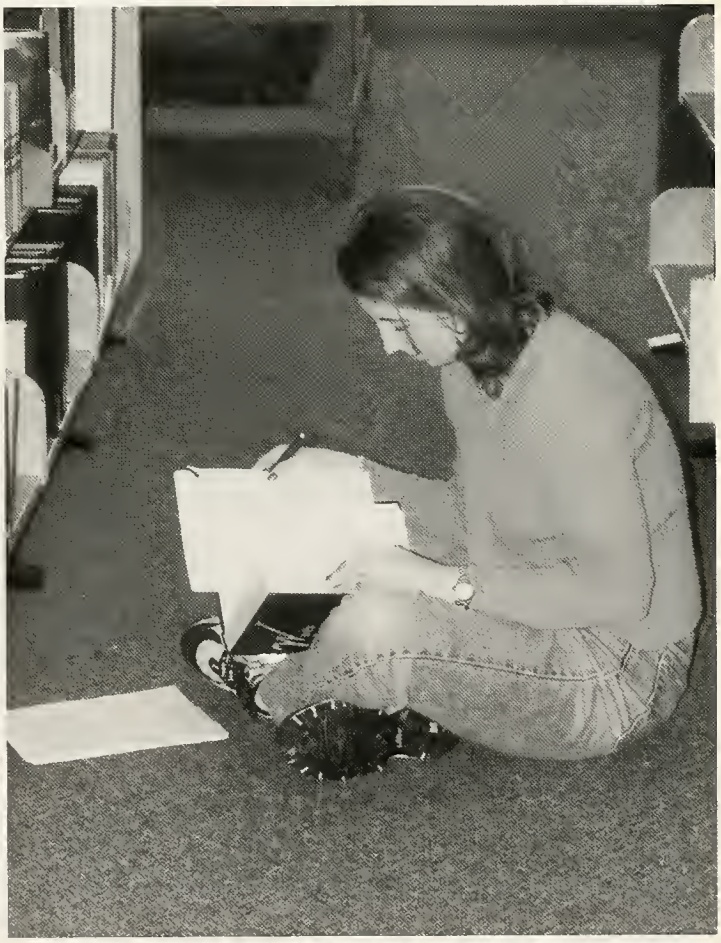
The recently-renovated library is hopping during exam time and busy throughout the year. Sure, there are videos for rent, but one can also use the internet, the language lab, the lecture room, or any of the many private study rooms. Oh, and there's lots of books, too.

If your attention span is not your strong suit, take advantage of an individual study area for privacy and quiet.

The library has plenty of big tables where students can set up camp for long study sessions.

These students show blatant disregard for the incredibly important "no drink" policy that some workers so diligently enforce. It's amazing that these girls each had a drink among the books and the library is still standing today.





Sarah Monti takes care of some important library business while working as a work-study.

Students can just plop right down on the floor to work.

Proud to Create

The Art Building never sleeps, as students are always working on their masterpiece

The Art Building is one place where one can always find students. Art students do most of their homework in the studios, so it's common to see several painters working at midnight or photographers taking a break from the darkroom. These late nights develop friendships, relationships based on the common bond of trying to crank out six drawings before your 9am critique.

Mary Catherine Anthony works on her self-portrait for painting class.

Senior Sculpture major Chris Forgey gives Jordan Segrest advice on her painting. This cooperative spirit unites many student artists.

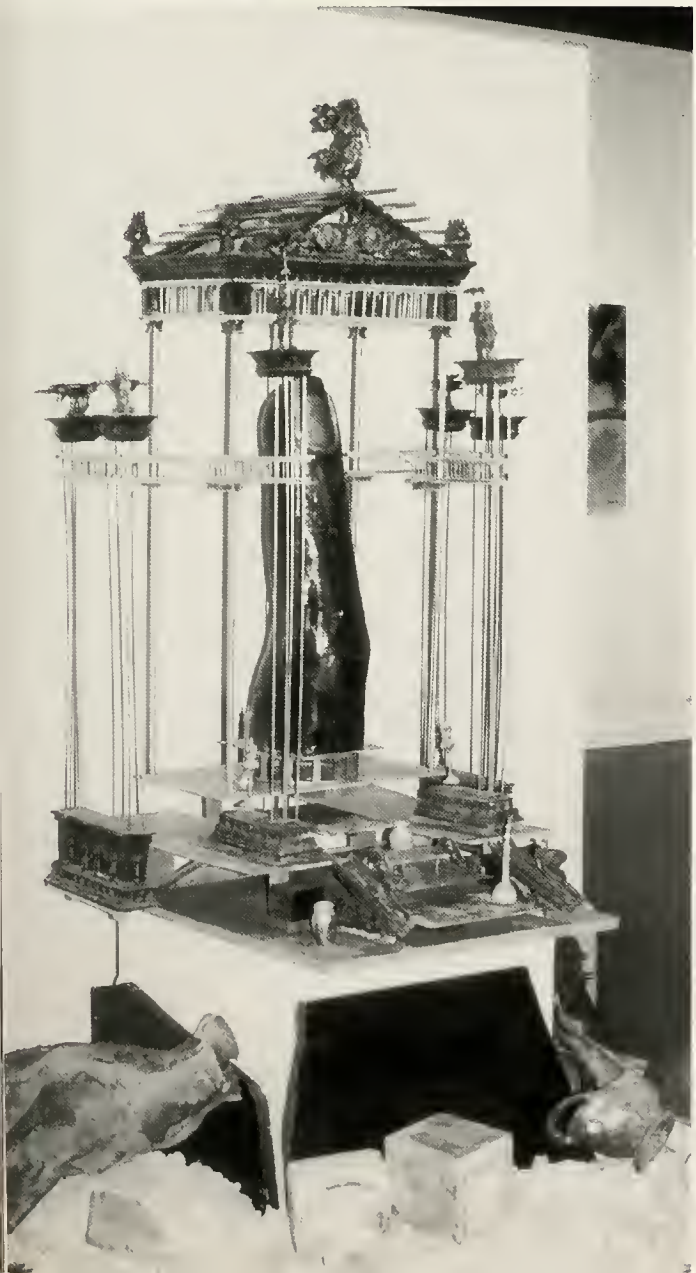
Sculpture is another popular outlet for expression.

Leigh Fenner puts the finishing touches on a sculpture.

In the cluttered painting studio, each student tries to find their own workspace.

The large, professional gallery features plenty of room for big paintings.

Photography in the gallery can take many creative forms such as this unusual panorama.



Proud to Admire

The Art Gallery brings exhibits from off-campus and shows works of students and faculty

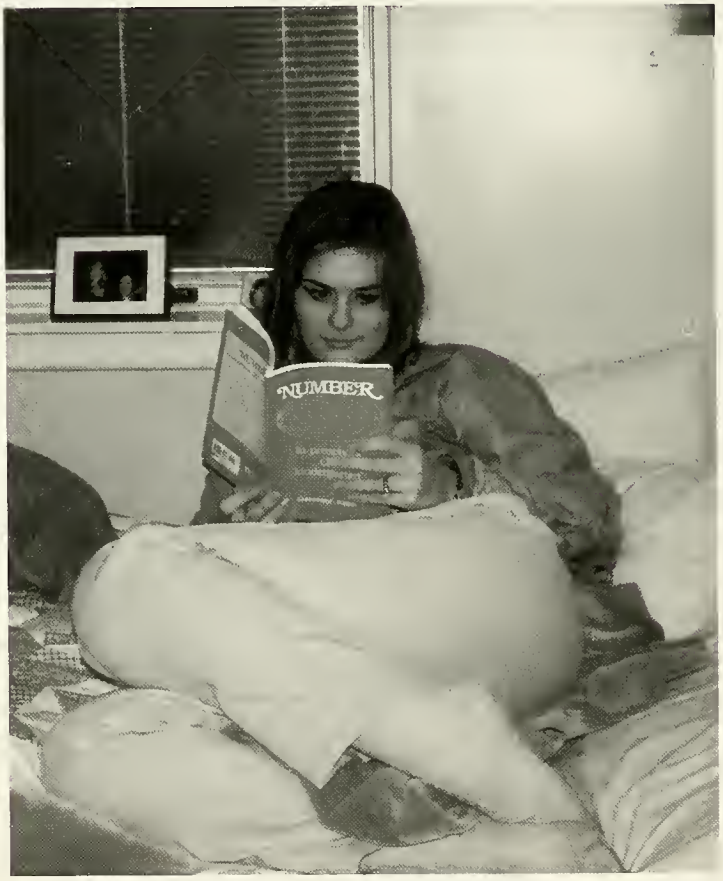
The Art Gallery is a great place to check out new art in forms ranging from sculpture to photography. It features several exhibits from off-campus artists as well as faculty exhibitions. Also popular are the Senior BFA Exhibit, featuring works of graduating seniors, and the Juried Student Art Show, a competitive exhibit with awards.

Sculptures such as the ones shown here are often fun, whimsical pieces of art designed to trigger one's imagination.

Proud to be Roomies

Dorm life teaches you independence and what it's like to share a room, but that's only the beginning

Dorms at 'Southern feature such ammenities as combination entrances, voicemail, kitchens, and computer labs, making them like expensive apartment buildings. But it's the fun of living on campus that makes it worthwhile. From late-night studying to enduring boring hall meetings, living in the dorms is an invaluable experinece.



Studying in bed is comfortable if you can only avoid falling asleep.

Dorm rooms also have desks so students can do homework wihtout going to the library.

The famous girls of 2C had a great time living together as they studied and partied together all year.

Free laundry facilities are so popular with students that some alumni even come back to take advantage.

Laptop computers are a convenient alternative to the trek to Olin.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS, SOUTHERN FOLK

Proud to Play

SoCo '99 brings the campus together for a weekend of carnival games and band parties

Southern Comfort weekend is often the most anticipated weekend of the year by all students. SoCo '99 kicked off with a band party on the Quad featuring student and professional bands, and Saturday was the carnival at which students ate crawfish and played games.

Junior Russ Parrish races David Pugh on the neck-snapping bungee run.

Three friends join together at Friday night's band party.

In front of Hanson, Chad Bradford and Rob Sway enjoy a volleyball match.

There are plenty of messy pandas at the AOPi pie toss.

The moonwalk proves popular even among college students.

LIBRARY OF BIRMINGHAM-SOUTHERN COLLEGE

For many students, the fresh crawfish are the best thing at the SoCo Carnival.

Students take out their aggressions in a big soft boxing match.

A semi-evil Kappa Delta waits for water gun prey.

Students hang out and eat while waiting for a water balloon war.

Proud to Party

Southern Comfort '99 featured great new bands and talented students. Saturday night's headlining act, Everything, put the hit song "Hooch" in student's heads and those little green "e" stickers all over the dorms.

SoCo brings alumni and former students back to the Hilltop, making it a reunion weekend as much as a party

Lauren Brewer and April Barber have a scream on the big soft slide.

Several Valley Foods Cafeteria workers are honored for their contributions to the Hilltop.

Graduating senior and outgoing SGA president Mitesh Shah receives an award.

Newly-elected SGA president Anne Tyler Hamby addresses the crowd.

Proud to be Noticed

Awards Day and Honors Day take time out from classes to honor achievements and service

Awards Day and Honors Day are more than days for cancelled classes and abbreviated schedules. Both days serve as a time to reward good work by honoring students, faculty, and staff for being contributors to the College.

Kerwin Lonzo is recognized for his contributions to the Hilltop News. Kerwin was the author of a weekly sports column.

Senior Tom Franklin receives an award. Tom was a standout baseball pitcher and a resident advisor.

LIBRARY OF BINGHAMTON SOUTHERN CONNECT

Proud to Set Sail

Interim at Birmingham-Southern proves to be an interesting time, especially for the ones who spend it on the Harvey Gamage

The Sailing interim took its farewell voyage in January. Led by Gary Dale, this interim allowed many BSC students to spend a month sailing the Caribbean. The students worked hard, actually sailing the boat with the help of a few professionals. This interim was truly a wonderful experience.

The sailing trip crew enjoys the land as well as the sea.

The breathtaking Harvey Gamage sets sail for a day of snorkeling at the Tobago Keys.

While raising the sails, all students give a burly "2-6 heave."

Climbing the shrouds is a scary but challenging experience for all sailors.

Taking a break from their duties, student sailors enjoy a waterfall in Dominica after a hike to reach it.

LIBRARY OF BINGHAMTON SOUTHERN COLLEGE

From mohawks to Mexican hats, 'Southern has it all. Ben Glasser enthusiastically greeted a visitor while cool cat Mary Catherine Anthony chilled in her room.

People

To meet crazy new people, college is the place to go. Be it a trip to the Caf or a party on frat row, you always see a wide mix of people, diversity that makes one proud to be 'Southern.

Alpha Tau Omega

As one of the oldest fraternities at BSC, Alpha Tau Omega has always been an integral part of the campus community. Through our creative interaction in all areas of campus life, ranging from philanthropies and intramural sports to various student organizations, ATO stands out as the most unique fraternity. This uniqueness results from the individuality within our fraternity. One of the defining characteristics of an ATO is the readiness to have a good time. During the fall, ATO has imaginative themes for many mixers, as well as Viking, a 31-year old tradition that was started by this chapter and has spread nationwide. Over the past years ATO's have epitomized diversity, loyalty, and friendship. We take pride in our fraternity and value every brother. We also prove once and for all that size doesn't matter. Okay, maybe it does a little bit.

Editor's Note

When I was chosen to be yearbook editor, I had no idea how much work was involved. My naivety produced quite a few headaches; we could not, as I thought, turn out the entire book in only a few months. But we worked through all the problems, and worked diligently to capture your memories through photography and text. I hope you enjoy the 1999 Southern Accent.
